

Biodata: Kardi Nurhadi, Hendriwanto, Lilik Istiqomah, Fahmi Gunawan

Kardi Nurhadi is a teacher educator in the Department of English at the Faculty of Education, Universitas Wiralodra, Jawa Barat, Indonesia. His research interests lie in extensive reading, critical reading and literacy, academic reading, multimodality, systemic functional linguistics in language education, task-based language teaching (TBLT), teacher professional development, photovoice in language education and emotional geography in language teaching and learning. He has engaged in numerous teacher professional developments and ELT conferences since 2015. He is a managing editor of Wiralodra English Journal (WEJ) Indonesia. Now, he has also been a reviewer for MEXTESOL Journal since April 2022.

Hendriwanto is an English lecturer in the English Education Department, Faculty of Education and Science, Universitas Swadaya Gunung Djati, Indonesia. His interests include English for academic purposes, materials development, and systemic functional linguistics (SFL). He has published in several refereed journals such as Journal of Education for Teaching and The Journal of ASIA TEFL.

Lilik Istiqomah lectures on English language and translation studies in the Department of English Education of UIN Raden Mas Said Surakarta based in Central Java, Indonesia. Her research interests include translation pedagogy, applied linguistics, subtitling, language teaching methodology and Emotional Geography in language education. She is continuing her PhD in translation pedagogy at the Western Sydney University (WSU), Australia on 14 September 2021.

Fahmi Gunawan holds a PhD in Linguistics. He is an associate professor in the Department of Arabic Language Education, Institut Agama Islam Negeri Kendari, Southeast Sulawesi, Indonesia. He has fourteen years of experiences in teaching and research. His research interests include but are not restricted to translation, critical discourse analysis, systemic functional linguistics, socio-pragmatic, language education and language in Islamic studies.