

Biodata: Marcela Quintana-Lara, Lucía Ramos-Leiva, Claudio Díaz-Larenas, Michel Riquelme-Sanderson, & Tania Tagle-Ochoa

Marcela Quintana-Lara is an Associate professor and Dean at Facultad de Ciencias Humanas, Universidad Arturo Prat (Iquique, Chile). She holds a Ph.D. in Curriculum and Instruction from the University of Kansas and has other studies in English language teaching. She has taught courses on language assessment, ELT methods, and linguistics. She has published textbooks on teaching English from a localized perspective and has been the author of several articles on language teaching. Dra. Quintana-Lara has co-researched various studies on English language teaching, lesson planning, and assessment. Her research interests are on initial teacher training and EFL Evaluation.

Lucía Ramos-Leiva is an Associate professor and Director of the English School at Facultad de Humanidades, Universidad Católica del Norte (Antofagasta, Chile). She is an English teacher with a Master's in Higher Education from Universidad de Tarapacá and a postgraduate degree in Applied Linguistics. She teaches courses on EFL teaching methods to young learners and teenagers. Mrs. Ramos-Leiva has published six textbooks to teach English and has nine years of experience doing research in EFL initial teacher preparation, social justice, service learning, and the revitalization of indigenous cultures. Her research interests are interculturality, social justice, and service learning in EFL.

Claudio Díaz-Larenas is a full profesor at Facultad de Educación, Universidad de Concepción (Concepción, Chile). He holds a Ph.D. in Education from Universidad de Concepción. He teaches in the EFL teaching program and master's and doctoral programs. He has led and been awarded several research grants by the Agencia Nacional de Investigación y Desarrollo (ANID) to investigate English language learning, assessment, and cognition in school teachers and pre-service teachers. Dr. Díaz-Larenas is a member of the National Accreditation Commission in the language area. His research interests include initial teacher training, learning and teaching processes, and EFL evaluation.

Michel Riquelme-Sanderson is an Assistant Professor and Director of Pedagogy at Facultad de Ciencias Humanas, Universidad Arturo Prat (Iquique, Chile). He holds a Ph.D. in Curriculum and Instruction from the University of Washington and has other graduate studies in higher education, teaching EFL, and educational research. He is a former EFL teacher and has worked teaching in K-12 contexts in Chile and the United States. Dr. Riquelme-Sanderson currently teaches courses on curriculum, educational research, and language teaching methods. His work focuses on language teacher education, language teacher educators, diversity, and social justice in the teaching of languages.

Tania Tagle-Ochoa is an Associate Professor and Director of the English language Teaching Program at Universidad Católica de Temuco (Temuco, Chile). She holds a Ph.D. in Teacher Education from Universidad de Extremadura and has other studies in language teaching. She teaches in the English language teaching program and has taught in education and EFL graduate programs. Dr. Tagle-Ochoa has been part of several research teams and authored numerous publications in language teacher education. She is a member of the National Accreditation Commission in the language area. Her research interests are on initial teacher training and ELT methods.