

Biodata: Kurniasih, Nur Mukminatien, M. Affandi Arianto, Ratih Novita Sari, Merliyani Putri Anggraini & Atik Umamah

Kurniasih is a doctor in English Language Education from at the Universitas Negeri Malang, Indonesia. She teaches in the English Education Department of Universitas Islam Malang, Indonesia. She earned her Master's degree at the English and Foreign Languages University, India. She completed her undergraduate degree majoring at English Education study program, Universitas Islam Malang, Indonesia. Her research interests are focused on language teaching methodology, writing skills, and writing anxiety.

Nur Mukminatien is a Professor in Teaching English as a Foreign Language (TEFL) at Universitas Negeri Malang. She earned her undergraduate, master, and doctorate degrees from Universitas Negeri Malang. She has experiences in teaching English in primary and secondary schools in Moscow. Her research interest includes second language writing and English teaching methodology.

M. Affandi Arianto is a doctor of applied linguistics. He is a lecturer at Universitas Negeri Padang, West Sumatera, Indonesia. He received the Doctoral degree in English Language Education from Universitas Negeri Malang. His research interests include genre analysis, rhetorical structure of research articles, academic writing, doctoral research, Critical Qualitative Inquiry, and Linguistics.

Ratih Novita Sari earned her Undergraduate and Master's degree in English Education. She then pursued her doctoral degree in English Language Teaching at Universitas Negeri Malang, Indonesia. Her research interests include ICT in ELT, TEFL, and Second Language Writing. Recently she has worked as a lecturer at the Department of English Language Education, University of Muhammadiyah, Prof. Dr HAMKA, Jakarta, Indonesia.

Merliyani Putri Anggraini is a doctoral degree holder in English Language Teaching (ELT) at Universitas Negeri Malang, Indonesia. She earned her master's degree at the University of Lampung, which is in ELT. Her research interests include reading comprehension, technology-enhanced language learning, and individual differences.

Atik Umamah is a doctoral student of English Language Teaching at the Universitas Negeri Malang. She is also a lecturer at the English Education Department of Universitas Islam Malang. Her research interests are focused on writing skills, language learning strategies, and self-regulation.