

Biodata: Majid Sadoughi & S. Yahya Hejazi

Majid Sadoughi is an associate professor of psychology at the University of Kashan (Iran). He has extensively published in Iranian and leading international journals. His current research interests include educational psychology and positive psychology. His recent publications appear in Computer Assisted Learning, Innovation in Language Learning and Teaching, Current Psychology, Studies in Educational Evaluation, Social Psychology of Education, and Journal of Psycholinguistic Research. He is currently involved in some national and international research projects on topics related to his research interests.

S. Yahya Hejazi is an assistant professor of applied linguistics at Semnan University (Iran). His current research interests include English for Academic/Specific Purposes (EAP/ESP), individual differences, and psychology of language learning and teaching. His recent publications appear in Journal of English for Academic Purposes, Studies in Educational Evaluation, Iberica, Current Psychology, English Teaching and Learning, Journal of Psycholinguistic Research, Language Testing in Asia, Innovation in Language Learning and Teaching, Social Psychology of Education, and ESP Today. He is currently involved in some national and international research projects on topics related to his research interests.