

Biodata: Hosam Elmetaher

Hosam Elmetaher received his master's degree in TESOL (Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages). He is currently a PhD candidate in Applied Linguistics. He is a full-time English lecturer at a private Japanese university. Hosam has published several textbooks and research papers on English language education, curricula, methodology, and tests. His textbooks are being used in educational institutions worldwide. He has also participated in multiple conferences, workshops, and research projects, receiving over 10 awards, grants, fellowships, and research funds. Hosam is currently working on long-term research on productive vocabulary knowledge acquisition, development, and assessment.