

Authors' Biodata: Iraís Ramírez Balderas, Pauline Moore, María de Lourdes Gutiérrez Aceves, Elva Nora Pamplon Irigoyen, & Roxana Cano Vara

Iraís Ramírez Balderas is a Doctor in Applied Linguistics by Macquarie University, Sydney, Australia and full-time teacher in the Language Teaching program at the Autonomous University of Tlaxcala. She has been involved with teacher training for over 30 years and is currently in charge of research seminars, reading academic texts in L2, academic writing, and vocabulary strategies. Representative of the research group interdisciplinary communities with published articles, book chapters and manuals. Her research interests include learning communities, learning strategies and academic literacy in English.

Pauline Moore holds a Masters in Applied Linguistics and a PhD in Linguistics from the Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México. She has worked as a teacher and teacher trainer in the Facultad de Lenguas of the Universidad Autónoma del Estado de México for the last 30 years. Her areas of research interest are Academic Literacy, Corpus linguistics and Learner Autonomy in the area of English as a foreign language.

María de Lourdes Gutiérrez Aceves is a full-time professor-researcher at the BA in ELT, and the Master in Language Didactics at the Tuxtla Language Faculty of the Autonomous University of Chiapas (UNACH), in Chiapas, Mexico. Member of the Mexican System of Researchers, member of the State System of Researchers. She holds a Doctorate in Education, a M.A. in Teacher Training Development in ELT and M.A in Special Education; a Posdoctorate in Bilingual Curriculum Design of Higher Education, and Posdoctorate in Human Development. She has been awarded the Innovation in Teaching Practice Award 2022 by ANUIES; The Best Teacher of the Year Award in 2022, by Mextesol Chapter Chiapas; and she received the COPAES 2021 Award.

Elva Nora Pamplon Irigoyen holds a Doctorate in Humanities in the area of foreign languages and an M.A. in TESOL. She is a full-time professor-researcher in the Department of Foreign Languages of the University of Sonora, México teaching in the B.A in English Language Teaching and in the Humanities graduate program. She is a member of the Applied Linguistics in Foreign Languages research group focusing on the areas of academic writing at university level and primary ELT in Mexico.

Roxana Cano Vara holds an MA in ELT from the University of Southampton in the UK. She has over 20 years of teaching experience in courses for young learners, adolescents and adults. She is currently a very happy and proud teacher in the BA in ELT at Escuela de Lenguas UJED. Her research interests are Teacher education, students' and teachers' perceptions and educational psychology.