

Biodata: Mohammad Salehi & Samaneh Gholampour

Mohammad Salehi is an associate professor of applied linguistics in Sharif University of Technology. His research interests lie mainly in language testing and second language acquisition research. He has published papers and book reviews in international referred journals such as System, Learned Publishing, and International Journal of Applied Linguistics. He has presented papers in different conferences in the United States, Australia, and Europe.

Samaneh Gholampour is a PhD candidate in Azad University. She is now teaching in public high schools. She has published papers in international and local journals and has presented papers in international conferences.