

Biodata: Claudio Diaz Larenas, Paz Aravena Figueroa, Leslie Cisternas Martínez, Mabel Ortiz Navarrete, Juan Fernando Gómez Paniagua

Claudio Diaz Larenas, PhD in Education and Master of Arts in Linguistics. He works at the Department of Curriculum and Instruction at the Faculty of Education in Universidad de Concepción, Chile. He teaches undergraduate and graduate courses in EFL Didactics and Assessment. He is currently coordinating the Master in English teaching, learning and assessment program at Universidad de Concepción. His research field is teacher cognition, language assessment and teacher knowledge.

Paz Aravena Figueroa, Bachelor of Arts in English teaching from Universidad de Concepción, Chile. She is currently teaching at the public school system in Concepción, Chile. She also offers private lessons on English learning to students of all ages. Her research interest is language assessment and teaching strategies.

Leslie Cisternas Martínez, Bachelor of Arts in English teaching from Universidad de Concepción, Chile. She is currently teaching at the public school system in Concepción, Chile. She also offers private lessons on English learning to students of all ages. Her research interest is language assessment and teaching strategies.

Mabel Ortiz Navarrete, PhD in Linguistics and Master of Arts in Information and Communication Technologies. She works at the Department of Language Sciences at the Faculty of Education in Universidad Católica de la Santísima Concepción, Chile. She teaches undergraduate and graduate courses in Applied Linguistics and CALL. Her research field is feedback strategies and academic writing.

Juan Fernando Gómez Paniagua, PhD in Education Sciences and Master in Applied Linguistics to English Teaching. He works at the Department of Basic Sciences at Tecnológico de Antioquia - Institución Universitaria in Colombia. He teaches undergraduate courses in general English and has designed a great deal of communicative-based English courses for undergraduate programs in different universities. His research field is teacher beliefs, language strategies and willingness to communicate.