

Biodata: Luis Humberto Rodríguez-Silva, Benjamin L. Stewart, & Silvia Rodríguez-Narciso

Luis Humberto Rodríguez Silva holds a PhD in Applied Linguistics and an MA in Applied Linguistics from the University of Essex in England. He also holds a BA in ELT from Universidad Autónoma de Aguascalientes. He has been part of the Language Department of the Universidad Autónoma de Aguascalientes since 1998. He was also the Head of the Department from 2005 to 2011. His main research interests are the learning difficulty of grammatical structures, written errors in academic writing, the use of L1 in the classroom, language learning aptitude, working memory capacity, and implicit and explicit knowledge.

Benjamin L. Stewart is a full professor in EFL teacher training and a researcher in the Language Department at the Universidad Autónoma de Aguascalientes in Aguascalientes, México. He holds a PhD in education with a specialization in instructional and curriculum leadership, and a master's degree in education, curriculum instruction: technology. He has an interest in transparent professional learning.

Silvia Rodríguez-Narciso received a Ph.D. degree in Probability and Statistics from the Mathematics Research Center, México. She is Professor in the Department of Statistics at the Universidad Autónoma de Aguascalientes in Aguascalientes, México. Her research interests include applied statistics, inference, Bayesian statistics, reliability, and environmental statistics.