

Biodata: Sara Afzali, Neda Hedayat, Neda Gharagozloo

Sara Afzali is a Ph.D. candidate in TEFL (Teaching English as a Foreign Language) at Islamic Azad University, Varamin-Pishva Branch. She concurrently teaches English language courses at several universities, offering instruction in areas related to language pedagogy and applied linguistics. She has extensive experience working with diverse groups of learners through face-to-face, online, and hybrid instructional formats. Her research interests include language teaching methodologies, mobile-assisted language learning, and learner development. She has published several scholarly articles in national journals and continues to contribute to research and teaching within the field of English language education.

Neda Hedayat serves as an Assistant Professor in the Department of Linguistics at Islamic Azad University, Varamin-Pishva Branch. Her academic responsibilities encompass teaching a wide range of graduate and postgraduate courses in linguistics and applied linguistics, including Research Methods, Psycholinguistics, Sociolinguistics, Syntax, Semantics, Morphology, Phonology, Typology, and Academic Writing. She has taught across several branches of the university and has supervised numerous M.A. theses and Ph.D. dissertations. Dr. Hedayat has authored multiple publications in applied linguistics and TEFL, and she has presented her research at national and international academic conferences.

Neda Gharagozloo serves as an Assistant Professor at the Varamin-Pishva Branch of Islamic Azad University. She holds a Ph.D. in Linguistics, and her academic expertise spans TEFL, cognitive linguistics, semantics, pragmatics, and discourse analysis. Dr. Gharagozloo has taught courses related to these areas and has actively contributed to the field through extensive scholarly research. She has published numerous scientific articles in reputable national and international journals. Her work reflects a strong commitment to advancing theoretical and applied discussions in linguistics and English language teaching.